On the Subject of Dot Clouds

I don't trust data when it's harder to guess the direction of the correlation from the scatter plot than to find new constellations on it. Good thing you're not the one doing the linear regression.

Six of the sets of dots with the same label in the diagram below are present on the module, as well as one from one of the other ten. Press the lone dot to solve the module.

